WOLVES-GOPHER GAME TOPS BIG 10 CARD

WOLVERINES TO USE ALL KNOWN TRICKS TO STOP MINNESOTA

Kipke Ranks Foe as Toughest of Schedule; Wildcats Meet Wisconsin.

BY WILLIAM WEEKES
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO, Nov. 11—Everything Michigan hasn't used against gridiron adversaries this season will be employed Saturday against Minnesota, ranked now by Coach Harry Kipke as the Wolverines' toughest foe of the season.

Michigan will close its season a week from Saturday against Chicago, but the luckless Maroons are not considered capable of doing any more than trying hard. Michigan and Minnesota have been the warmest of rivals for many years, and in bad years, the supposedly weaker eleven has sometimes arisen to its greatest heights in the meeting.

The Gophers, with Bronko Nagurski as the spearhead, presented a powerful aggregation against one of Michigan's weakest teams last fall, but the Wolverines won 7 to 6.

Season's Record Fair
Minnesota's season has not been good, but all the cripples—ends Al Kresowski and Marvin Dillner and the pint-sized halfback flash, Ken MacDougal, are ready for business and the Gophers may have a surprisingly powerful offense to go with good defense.

Northwestern's undefeated Wildcats enjoyed a rest yesterday, but at Wisconsin, which goes to Eagan for the other important Big Ten battle Saturday, all hands were put to work. Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite rushed the Badgers into a drill on new plays had finished the period with study of Northwestern passes.

The Wildcats will engage Wisconsin minus Pug Rentner, the front end of the effective Rentner-to-Baker passing combination, who suffered an injury to his spine at Minnesota two weeks ago.

He will not be used before the Wildcats undergo the Notre Dame treatment a week from Saturday.

Coaches Optimistic

Both Chicago and Illinois are counting on Saturday's clash at Stagg field to produce a Big Ten victory. Coach Amos Alonzo Stagg figures that it will be a great contest, although little is at stake.

The Illini youngsters showed big improvement against the Army, and Coach Zuppke is optimistic.

Ohio State suffered an important loss yesterday when it was learned that Dave Chizik, sophomore quarterback and accurate passer, will play no more this season. Chizik suffered an injury to his arm and an infection developed. The rest of the Buckeyes, however, will be in shape to battle Pitt's Panthers Saturday.

A big list of more or less serious injuries lowered Iowa's hopes of presenting anything like its best power against Penn State Saturday. Lloyd and Leo Jenysvold, backfield aces, and Rogge and Mastrogony, ends, were replaced by subs yesterday.

Ohio U. Possessor of Enviable Scoring Mark

ATHENS, Nov. 11—Ohio University's Bobcats, defending champions of the Buckeye conference, point with pride to the enviable record they have accumulated in their past 17 games during which time they have been undefeated.

Since Nov. 17, 1928, the Ohio University eleven has scored a total of 507 points while giving their opponents but 39 points. In 1929, the Bobcats scored 308 points to 13 for their competitors and in seven games this year have tallied 201 points to 26 for the opposition.

Larry Dugan and Harold Mackey, a pair of Dartmouth ends, weigh more than 195 pounds each.

TIGERS BATTLE YALE IN RENEWAL OF LONG GRIDIRON WARFARE

Blue with Booth at Head Is Heavy Favorite To Defeat Roper Team.

BY HERBERT W. BARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK, Nov. 11—Buffeted around all season, the Princeton Tigers have only one more opportunity to give Bill Roper something to cheer about before he retires as head football coach. All will be forgiven if the Tigers succeed in checking Yale in Palmer stadium in Saturday's renewal of their ancient rivalry.

Of course the odds are all against a Princeton victory. The Tigers have not won a game since they beat back Amherst, 22-0, in the opening battle of the season. Since then they've tied a weak Chicago outfit and been beaten by Brown, Cornell, Navy and Lehigh. Yale has beaten Mass., Brown, Maryland and Alfred, tied two of the east's strongest elevens, Dartmouth and Army, and lost only to Georgia.

Princeton teams have a habit of playing their best against the Blue and the history of their rivalry since 1873 has produced many an upset. Yale leads by a wide margin in games won.

Harvard tackles Holy Cross and can count on tough going. Cornell and Dartmouth meet in another stand-out attraction. Syracuse tackles a bitter state foe in College with the latter favored; Brown takes on Columbia; New York university faces Georgetown; Temple takes on Lafayette; Lehigh will try to stop Jack Grossman and Rutgers; and Washington and Jefferson clash with Bucknell.

The intercollegiate slate is headed by the Penn-Georgia Tech, Navy-Southern Methodist, Fordham-St. Mary's, Villanova-Oglethorpe and Army-Kentucky Wesleyan games in the east.

STATE STARTS DRILL FOR PANTHER BATTLE

Regulars Given Light Work-out; Two Players on Hospital List.

By International News Service
COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 11—After a light workout yesterday afternoon to iron out the wrinkles of the Navy game, Ohio State's football team settled down today to all the important task of drilling for the attack of the Pitt Panther here Saturday.

Members of the varsity, who saw most of the service against the midshipmen, drilled for an hour yesterday and were sent to the showers by Coach Sam Williamson.

The second-stringers were given a snappy lesson in defending the attack of a third team using Jock Sutherland's pet plays and using some of his tricks.

Two Bucks were on the hospital list today. They are Dave Chizik, flashy sophomore quarterback, and Bob Grady, elusive broken-field runner. Chizik was confined to University hospital with a muscle injury which may keep him out of the Pitt clash. Grady is suffering from a light attack of grippe but is expected to be in shape by the end of the week.

Vokaty, nestled back into second place with his 61 points while Hale stepped up to first position with 66 markers. Kenneth "Red" Cochrane Alton's backfield ace, scored three touchdowns against Case to come up to a tie with Vokaty.

Lou Little, new Columbia university football coach, is building his team toward a time the school again will schedule games with Yale and Harvard.

Kid Chocolate To Fight Battalino for Title

By The Associated Press
GAMBIER, O., Nov. 11—A 25-minute quarter reckoned by the clock sounds paradoxical—but it happened to the Kenyon-Mount Union college football teams in their game here Saturday. The two teams played 25 minutes instead of 15 in their third quarter. The time keeper was too interested and forgot. The 63-2 defeat of Kenyon, however, will not be protested.

Business Not Bad as Pictured, Speaker Says

High ideals on part of public helps keep things moving. Fred Lazarus, Columbus merchant, tells Marion audience at C. of C. dinner.

Business conditions aren't half as bad as they are painted, but on the contrary are better than the average person would expect, so declared Fred Lazarus, Columbus business man in an address before the Chamber of Commerce members dinner meeting last night in the Marion club.

"Every merchant has experienced a decline in his volume of business this year, but even taking that in consideration his sales are keeping at a surprisingly good level. The American buying public in the past has set a high standard and it isn't going to sacrifice its wants now," the speaker said. "As a re-

Chic Star Patterns

Practical and Simple

Comfortable and Fashionable.

Pattern 1934

Pajamas have become more and more popular each season because of their comfort and practicality. They are inexpensive, too, since simple, serviceable fabrics are used in making them. The model shown today is quite plain, with no trimming or unnecessary work, yet dainty and becoming.

Market Oversupplied

One of the principal troubles in business today is that overproduction has so glutted the market that it will take time to consume the over-supply of many commodities, he explained. When the demand for products are increased production goes up with such speed that it is not so easy to find time to increase our ambitions, he said.

Lazarus pointed out that retail merchants' problems today are vastly different than they were 20 or 25 years ago.

"The intervening generation ago put the buying public come to him. Now he must cater to the public. He must know what the public wants and strive to supply the customer according to the Columbus man said.

Lazarus and George V. Sheridan, executive secretary of the Ohio Council of Retail Merchants, were the principal speakers at the meeting which attracted 150 Marion business men, most of them retail merchants. Lazarus is president of the Ohio Council, and is a director of the national Chamber of Commerce.

Merchants who are prone to attack the chain stores instead should study the methods and supply the good points to their own business, Lazarus advised. An all-around sense of humor on the part of a merchant is a sign that he is not keeping up with the times, one of the speaker said.

Problems Change

Lazarus pointed out that the retail merchant's problems today are vastly different than they were 20 or 25 years ago.

"The intervening generation ago put the buying public come to him. Now he must cater to the public. He must know what the public wants and strive to supply the customer according to the Columbus man said.

Lazarus likened present business conditions to a sick person who is stricken with the grippe. The grippe for business, he said, is the consumption of the over-supply of products now in existence, in order that the markets may be cleared for normal production patterns.

The automobile, good roads, the radio, talking pictures and scores of other inventions in the past two decades have created changing conditions in retailing, Lazarus pointed out. The customer now knows what he wants and will go where he thinks he can get what he wants. It is up to the merchant, therefore, to look at his business from the buyer's point of view if he wishes to be successful, Lazarus said.

Sheridan spoke briefly on the coming session of the state legislature whose work on tax revision is highly important, he added.

A brief announcement of the state grange convention which will be held in Marion beginning Dec. 8 was made by Charles Klunk, chairman of the convention committee.

More than 4,000 visitors are expected to be in the city during the convention period, he said.

Merchants have promised to have their Christmas lighting displays ready in time for the convention, he told his listeners.

President Hoke Donithen of the Chamber of Commerce acted as toastmaster at the meeting, which will be followed by a similar dinner meeting early in December.

Births and deaths in Marion city nearly equalized one another during October, when 41 births and 35 deaths were reported to Dr. N. Sifrit, city-county health commissioner.

The vital statistics ratio in the county, however, was 22 births and 10 deaths, making a total of 63 births and 45 deaths for the combined health district.

Male births in the city totaled 24 and those in the county numbered 12. Female births numbered 17 in the city and 10 in the county.

Heart trouble caused five of the 35 city deaths, diabetes caused four and cerebral hemorrhage and exhaustion each caused three. Arterio sclerosis and apoplexy each resulted in two deaths.

The following each caused one death in the city: premature birth, skull fracture, infantile paralysis, brain congestion, rheumatism, paraplegia, cleft palate, stomach trouble, gastric ulcer, peritonitis, Bright's disease, atrophy of liver and bronchiectasis.

Heart disease caused three of the 10 county deaths, while two were due to accidents. Other causes for county deaths were pernicious anemia, senility, meningitis, cancer and complications.

COUNCIL REJECTS PARKING LOT PLAN

Officials Opposed To Leasing
Tract to Private Individuals.

The council is interested in improving conditions at the city park, the lot at Prospect and Church streets, but does not intend to lease the lot to private individuals for rental parking. This was indicated last night when a committee of the council members and possessors of cars met.

Some members of the council and the administration were in opposition to the plan, while others supported it. A vote was taken to postpone action on the proposal until after the election of the trustees, however, to be held at the next meeting of council.

Parking at the city park is considered a great convenience to the public, and many other parks are open and maximum the time.

Notable Leaders in U.S. Military Affairs Praise Soldiers, Voice Hopes for Peace

Three of the nation's distinguished leaders in military circles have voiced, in brief but comprehensive statements, praise for America's soldiers and hope for future peace in Armistice day statements. These expressions are given below:

BY GEN. JOHN J. PERSHING

This is a day of hallowed memory. Twelve years have elapsed since the ending of the greatest war of all time.

For America they have been years of peace and progress. It is well to recall on this day that these benefits have come to the American people through valor and heroism on soil that is the richer for the blood they gave it.

The dead command rest peacefully. For the living there remains the obligation of carrying on, of adhering steadfastly to those principles of freedom, justice and democracy which have been worth fighting for and which have made us a great and happy nation.

May there never be another war. But it is the duty of the living veterans of the great war to guide

BY PATRICK J. HURLEY

Secretary of War

On this day we express affectionate remembrance of those with whom we served and pause to pay homage to those who suffered and died for the victory we commemorate. We solemnly pledge our support to our nation in peace. More than half the world is in revolution. It should be our purpose to keep our own nation tranquil and to maintain the principles of freedom, justice and democracy which have been worth fighting for and which have made us a great and happy nation.

Teachers and the homeroom presidents and secretaries met last night to allot tickets to the rooms and to complete plans for the ticket campaign which will close Friday night.

Science can afford to discover its mistakes. Its opponent, too, often can't afford to discover theirs.

One way to sidetrack bad luck is to be prepared for it.

NEAR YEAR'S AIR GOAL

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 11—A spin among the clouds each day for one year is the endurance record Dr. John D. Brock, pioneer flier of Kansas City, hopes to achieve Nov. 15 to prove the dependability of aviation.

Near his goal in a conquest designed to show the superiority of modern airplanes over adverse meteorological conditions, the flying doctor looks back on days when he took off through rain, pea-soup fog or driving snow that paralyzed passenger and mail plane service.

Dr. Brock learned to fly back in the days of the "pusher" type plane. He now holds a transport pilot's license.

Helping young pilots has been his hobby. He has purchased and given two planes to groups of mechanics and students of aviation.

BY GEN. CHAS. P. SUMMERMILL

Chief of Staff

When the thunder of the guns died down to nothing 12 years ago, our nation rejoiced but was not surprised. We felt a thrilling access of relief that the letting of blood had ceased, that a long travail of suffering was over; but we had never doubted the issue. America's way is a path of victory. No obstacles, material or immaterial, work of men or work of nature, have ever stayed Summermill our progress. Armistice day is a day of rejoicing; it is also a day of dedication. It gives us the opportunity to resolve highly that the patriotism, the devotion and the valor which brought us victory in war shall continue to work for the advancement and happiness of our country.

Aimee Semple McPherson has suffered so many annoyances during the last year or two that we sincerely hope that, if she plans to follow the very general practice when leaving Havana, she will first provide herself with non-leakable luggage.

One hundred and fifty editors of business papers assembled in New York City express the opinion that the greatest expansion of trade and industry yet seen in the country will come in the next ten years. Hot stuff! That is, of course, if we can hold out that long.

The completion of the funding of the German debt to the United States under awards made by the mixed claims commission and for the costs of the American army of occupation totaling 3,169,700,000 reichsmarks—worth about twenty-five cents each—has been announced. And rich and prosperous France hasn't yet paid for the war material purchased from us following the war! Some contrast!

A Pledge and Its Acceptance.

Democracy, through its titular leaders, has made a post-election pledge that, no matter what the political complexion of either house of congress may be, it will not seek a general tariff revision, will not embarrass President Hoover nor fight his appointees because of partisanship, and will work to restore economic conditions to normal. Acting as spokesman for the Republican party, Senator James E. Watson, majority leader in the upper house of congress, has accepted the pledge as having been made in good faith and welcomes the Democratic pronouncement looking to cooperation for the improvement of business conditions and the advancement of the welfare of the nation generally.

The seven signers of the pledge, as published, were John J. Raskob, Democratic national chairman; Jouett Shouse, Democratic executive committee chairman; Senator Joseph T. Robinson, Democratic leader of the senate; Congressman John W. Garner, Democratic leader in the house, Alfred E. Smith, John W. Davis and James M. Cox, presidential candidates in 1928, 1924 and 1920, respectively. The seven, it may be said, represent practically every element, sectional or otherwise, of Democracy.

The worth of the assurance of these seven Democratic leaders is for future determination. We do not mean by this to question their good faith in making it, no more than we would question either their political or business wisdom in making it at this time. Unquestionably the situation of the country is such that there should be cooperation at this time if never before. Both houses of congress are so evenly divided politically that accomplishment by either party is next to impossible without the aid of the other. But can these seven Democratic leaders deliver the goods? Can they control the senators and representatives of the party and enforce an operation looking to the public good? This is a question which can not well be answered in advance. Even a line on it can hardly be had till congress is assembled for the coming short session. The pledge may or may not be kept. It is to be hoped that it will be. The situation is one where the interests of the country should be held paramount to those of parts of either party. But will it be? Frankly, we leave our doubts.

And should the Democratic and the Republican members of the two houses really cooperate, where will that leave the pure Republicans in the two houses, the radicals who have been running for office as Republicans only to hamstring the Republican party and defeat its policies? We are utterly unable to picture them supporting any considerable measure, whether such is inaugurated by the real Republican element in congress or by the Democratic element acting in cooperation with the Republicans who are such by principle.

Armistice Day.

The United States and her associates in the World war today are observing the twentieth anniversary of the act which ended the world's greatest and bloodiest war—the signing of the armistice.

There will be a vast amount of thought given the big feature of the day and thanks for the peaceful period in which it came, too, since the reigning generation has felt and seen the horrors of a great war. It has no illusions.

The two mottoes of men in Ohio's way of observing Armistice day officially are in honor of the "dead." It is of the utmost significance that they are moments of sorrow for young and old. There is grief that it was necessary for thousands of the best young men to die. America is being taught to exercise an inverse intolerance for the initiation of war, while continuing to be tolerant of the human frailties that race thrust war upon the world since the beginning of time.

Mechanization, to a large extent, mastered the human element which introduced it as the prime factor in the World war. Machines were the masters. They dehumanized armies and made of the once heroic soldier a machine servant to their needs. No longer were there waving flags, gallant charges, infallible leaders, personal conquests, martial music to send eager men into battle. There were thundering guns, tanks, poison gas, barbed wire, mud, fifth human beings cowering under the lash of explosives and sharpened steel. Life was cheap.

There may be more wars but it seems safe to assume that no nation ever will anticipate them as an opportunity to show its strength. Mothers and wives never again will send their loved ones to battle, exulting in the glory they may win. There will be only saddened hearts that such precious sacrifices should have to be made to machines in the hands of men to whom life is just as dear as it is to the men whom they kill.

Hence, it is with sorrow and prayers that peace may continue that the United States observes Armistice day. Thereon lies much hope for the human race, which is coming to count war as another barrier standing between it and the ultimate goal of all human endeavor—a more perfect civilization and greater happiness for the individual.

One hunter shot to death and another wounded by a game warden, Sunday, up near Chardon, in an endeavor to apprehend three brothers for Sunday hunting. An awful lot of deaths having their inception in trivial offenses are being recorded these days.

For World Court and Seas' Freedom.

President Hoover signaled his Armistice Day address before the annual conference and good will congress of the World Alliance for International Friendship Through the Churches in Washington this morning by renewing his appeal for the adherence of this country to the World court as well as participation by this country in any and all friendly efforts to maintain the peace of the world and restated and again urged the suggestion made by him a year ago that the nations of the world get together and effect a settlement of the age-old controversy regarding the freedom of the seas.

The President's suggestion then was and still is that food supplies be made immune from interference in time of war and that the security of such supplies be guaranteed by neutral transport and management. This country's food supplies being assured, we are in position to make a proposal for the freedom of the seas in this regard without being open to charges of self-interest. His proposal, the President stated, had not been made upon humane grounds alone, "but that the haunting fears of nations who must live over the sea might be relaxed and the sacrifice which they make for naval strength might be lessened." This, he held, will work for the prevention as well as for the limitation of war.

"We, as a nation whose independence, liberties and securities were born of war," Mr. Hoover went on, "can not contend that there never is or never will be righteous cause for war in the world. Nor can we assume that righteousness has so advanced in the world that we may yet have complete confidence in the full growth of pacific means or rest solely upon the processes of peace for defense."

According to Mr. Peter Dixon, who is familiar with the broadcasting of plays, more than seventy dramatic programs are put on the air by this city's stations each week. Fewer than a tenth of these are adaptations of plays written for the stage. All the others are written especially for the radio. Writers whether they have known this or not, have been considering the radio as a potential market. At present few dramatic sketches are submitted to stations. Mr. Sam Magill, in the November Writer's Monthly, describes the situation as he sees it from his position as announced. He thinks the free lance writer has a better chance now than he will have later on. But already some of the big advertising agencies employ a large staff to handle radio publicity for their clients. One has twenty-nine writers to produce radio copy only. Mr. Dixon discourages would-be radio dramatists from asking the present ones how they do it. Most of them are too busy turning out a play a week to be bothered with questions. —New York Times.

It is the President's belief, however, that within a few years the world will become so interlocked with international agreements that it will be an accepted principle of international law that disputes between nations which has not been possible to determine through the channels of diplomacy shall in the future be submitted to arbitration or to international conciliation commissions.

Hope for the development of methods of pacific settlement of disputes between nations lies in the extension of the body and principles of international law on which the settlements must be based. President Hoover held, and thus it was that he commended the World court as a strongly established institution among forty-five nations as a continuing body performing and facilitating justiciable determinations which can only be accomplished specifically under special treaties of arbitration. Its permanence is assured and from it there is steadily growing a body of precedent, decisions and acceptance of law in the formulation of which we should have a part not alone in our own interest but in a movement of peace.

It is not surprising that the Fascist movement is to enter the Austrian election Sunday to add to a farce. Even the Fascists of Austria must have realized that the entry of the Nazis in the last half damped their campaign to defeat.

It is not generally realized that Senator Hoff in 1928, in the course of his opposition to the League of Nations, set two goals. It is to have the League consist of a number of states, for a great deal of a little, a little chafing along the same line for party disloyalty.

RADIO DRAMA.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

When mother and infant are so fortunate as to depend on breast-feeding, the future of the child is bright. But when it becomes necessary to resort to artificial feeding new troubles come along. Then the mother must know just what constitutes a species.

When weaning time comes for the baby, cow's milk forms the basis of the diet.

Pasteurized milk is sure to be safe. The only substitute is certified milk of the best kind, milk from a clean dairy of unquestioned standards.

For some time advertisers buying time on the air have been expressing a preference for skits or plays. Dance music, broken up by the necessary direct advertising, held first position for a long time, but there is now a tendency away from the straight musical program.

Further confirmation of the leaning to drama may be found in the amount of the National Broadcating company.

It will present a series of twenty-six "outstanding plays of all time" once a week on a coast-to-coast network.

This is not a commercial venture, but a continuation of the educational program begun two years ago with concerts under the direction of Walter Damrosch. It presupposes the growth of interest in radio drama in which all station directors now believe.

Just as the musical program was put into schools, so is the drama.

These preparations are made from fresh cow's milk. They contain all the normal ingredients of milk, except water.

One method of manufacture depends on passing the liquid milk over revolving cylinders, heated to a high temperature.

The heat is quite sufficient to dry up the water, at the same time leaving the solid elements.

Another process consists in spraying the milk into a hot cylinder.

The result in all methods is practically the same.

HOOVER VOICES CALL FOR PEACE PROGRAM

Day Speech Stresses Fulfilling World War Aims.

any implication of the use of force, to use every friendly effort, and all good will to maintain the peace of the world.

The war that ended on this day 12 years ago taught us one thing, if nothing else, and that is the blessing of peace. When we look back upon its splendid valor and heroism then displayed, when we remember the magnificent energies poured forth by young and old, when we recall the marvelous exercise of the greatest virtues that glorify the human race—unselfishness, self-sacrifice, cooperation, both by men and women—we are looking not upon qualities which war creates but rather upon the traits of the human race which war makes seem more vivid by contrast with its own horrors. These same qualities are exercised, but are unsung and unheralded, in time of peace. Those who died displaying them would have displayed them living and would have wrought their fruits into the enduring fabric of our peaceful destiny.

We can only pledge ourselves, in honor of their memory, to the task of making even more unlikely that our youth hereafter shall be denied its opportunity to devote its idealism and its energies to the constructive arts of peace."

ASSEMBLE AT SHRINES

Tombs of Unknown Soldier and Wilson Scenes at Ceremonies.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—Armistice day, 1930, a dozen years after bloodshed ended on the western front, saw this nation rededicating itself to the cause of peace.

At two shrines, those whose memories went back to 1918, and the war years, paid homage. On the hill at Arlington, the unknown soldier of America's lost sons, was surrounded again by men who committed him to that resting place, together with civilian and military leaders of the country. In Washington Cathedral faithful friends met at the tomb of Woodrow Wilson, the war President.

President Hoover, after placing a wreath on the unknown's tomb, was speaking before the Good Will congress of the World Alliance for International Friendship.

Today's services at the unknown's grave opened with the visit of President Hoover, accompanied by Mrs. Hoover, Secretaries Hurley and Adams, General Sumner and Admiral Pratt, heads of the army and navy. After the chief executive's visit came a service participated in by the military chaplains who officiated at the soldier's interment. Annually they gather for this ceremony, repeating parts of the service they spoke on that solemn occasion.

OHIO OBSERVES EVENT

Governor Cooper and Other State Officials Take Part in Programs.

By International News Service

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 11.—Ohio joined with the nation today in observing Armistice day, as millions of persons throughout the world paused to pay tribute to the memory of those who gave their lives in the World War.

Schools, banks, state, county and city offices throughout Ohio, as well as business houses in some places, were closed, as communities participated in individual programs and celebrations.

One of the largest observances of the twelfth anniversary of the ending of the war was held at Columbus where Governor Myers Y. Cooper and other state officials joined the ceremonies of Franklin county and of Columbus.

BRITAIN PAYS TRIBUTE

LONDON, Nov. 11.—The British empire today kept the twelfth anniversary of the Armistice with ceremonies of silence and prayer that the horror of the world war may never be repeated.

An empire-wide two-minute silence was observed at 11 a. m., while King George, symbolizing the grief of his realm at the war losses, stood with bowed head in prayer at the cenotaph where just two years ago he caught the cold which led to his long and serious illness.

King George stood between his sons, the Prince of Wales and the Duke of York, with the prime ministers of the dominions and the princes of the Indian states flanking them, to make a group truly representative of the British Commonwealth of nations.

The principal ceremony was at the Arc de Triomphe where President Doumergue, surrounded by members of the cabinet, reviewed a procession of troops, former combatants and war wounded. He then placed a wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

On Sunday in Philadelphia he wrote his own last notice thus: "If anybody wants to know where I am, just tell them that at last I'm with the big timers—Bert Williams, Jack Donahue, Caruso and the rest of the crowd."

Then he killed himself. It probably comforts many to know that time and death will take them to join the "big timers," or at least remove them from the ruck of nobodies.

Glasener-Corwin Wedding Solemnized At M. E. Church

THE marriage of Miss Helen Glasener, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Glasener of Homer street, and Carl Corwin of Bellefontaine was solemnized at 10:30 o'clock this morning at Epworth M. E. church. The double ring service of the Methodist Episcopal church was read by the pastor, Dr. C. E. Turley, in the presence of the immediate families and close friends.

The bride was gowned in a frock of royal blue chiffon made with long lines and a circular skirt. The long sleeves and neck of the gown were trimmed with ecru lace. Her hat was of blue felt and ribbon and she wore blue kid slippers and white gloves. Her flowers were a corsage of pink roses and gypsophila. The bride's sister, Miss Bernice Glasener, was her only attendant.

She wore a gown of silver satin with blue moire and a blue felt hat. Her flowers were pink roses and white pompons arranged in a corsage. Carl Corwin of Bellefontaine was his brother's best man.

Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Corwin left on a wedding trip through the southern part of the state and upon their return will be at home after Nov. 15 on East George street.

The bride is a graduate of Hardin High school and has been employed with her father in the real estate business. Mr. Corwin is employed at the Van Alte hardware.

Many a human mind hasn't strength—or perhaps indifference—enough to be agnostic.

American, French Selections On Lecture-Recital Program

THE W.M.C. which brought to compartments, as were the ardent, delightful interpretations of American and French compositions, was thoroughly enjoyed by members and patrons of the Marion Lecture Hall, as last night in the ballroom at Hotel Harding.

Mr. Harold K. Mouser and Mrs. M. May in streets, both of whom spent the summer studying in France, were heard for the first time since their return on this program. Each chose for their selection numbers by French composers and duets with the piano duos played by Miss Wanda McManam.

Miss Virginia Foreman of Wallworth spent the weekend at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Foreman of North State street.

Miss Zeime Byrnes of St. Cloud, Fla., has arrived for an indefinite visit with Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Fischer of Florence street.

Miss Hannah Garford and George H. Garford of Elvira, are guests at the W. E. Orcutt home on Summit street. Miss Garford and Mr. Garford are sister and father of Mrs. Orcutt.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale E. Hughes of Marion left this morning for Haines City, Fla., where they will spend the winter.

Vengeance.

MARTHOLMEW went to him with her long, heavy steps. She had locked the door of his room and as she grudgingly opened the front door she put the key into her apron pocket.

"I said without civility, as she expected. Lester

When she returned to the sitting room, Halle, still very pale, managed a smile.

"What's that?" demanded Mrs. Bartholomew.

"He—I understand—she can away with him."

"That's true. But what's that other you've got hold of?"

"Mr. Perie told me. My—Constance was married already. And it is his daughter—his legitimate daughter who, I suppose, inherited all his money. She seems to be rich."

Mrs. Bartholomew came slowly across the room.

"Now look here, my girl, you've got to tell me every word that Mr. Perie said."

"Wearily Halle complied.

"You don't seem to believe him, Halle." She tried to laugh. "Perhaps it's a pity you wouldn't see him. You could have argued it out with him."

"Yes. Perhaps it is a pity."

She walked heavily to the fire and stood looking down at it. Presently she said savagely—

"The old swine! What before God is his game?"

When at length Mrs. Bartholomew moved and spoke, Halle was asleep.

Mrs. Bartholomew went to the kitchen. She lit a lamp, found a bottle of ink and some paper and, pushing aside some dirty plates, made herself a space upon the table upon which to write a letter.

It was a long letter and addressed to Saxe Grannock, care of Dr. Lytton.

It was 10 o'clock when she had finished but she put on her hat and made certain other preparations for an outing. As she passed through the hall she looked into the sitting-room. Halle still slept.

It was a quarter to 11 before she reached the Brown house and told the puzzled butler that she wished to speak to Mr. Brown. He was very doubtful indeed whether Mr. Brown would see her.

"What name is it?" he asked.

Mrs. Bartholomew hesitated.

"The name is Conaldine," she said.

Garfield started. He appeared to consider. Then he came to a decision and asked her to step in. To the end of his days Garfield was haunted by the recollection that it was he who let her into the house. He showed her into the study and then he went to the sitting-room where Lester and the brandy were firmly established.

"Hullo, Garbage!" uttered Lester. "I say, I'm going to be married tomorrow. No, I am married, but my wife's joining me tomorrow. That's it. She's to come to me or I'm to go to her. Makes no odds."

"No, sir, none," said Garfield. He was much troubled. "There is a woman to see you, sir—no, sir, not a lady by any means. She gave her name as Conaldine, sir, and for that reason I asked her into the study."

"Fair girl," chuckled Lester. "I know." He rose and stood testing his balance.

"Oh no, sir. An elderly woman. A curious person. I don't know whether I did right."

Lester looked at him gravely, then suddenly became perfectly normal in manner.

"I'll see what she wants, Garbage."

Lester went quite steadily and quietly down the corridor to the study. Garfield watched him. Lester opened the study door and went in.

The first shot came within 30 seconds after the door closed—fired from just behind it. The second shot followed as Garfield dashed forward.

"Mr. Brown must have died almost instantaneously," said the doctor when at last they could find him. He was Lytton's partner, a young man trying to be very professional and unconcerned.

"And—and the woman, doctor?" groaned the butler.

"The same. Who was she? She wore a wig—" He pulled it off and he and Garfield cried out together:

"It's a man!" whistled the doctor. "A man dressed up as a woman," stammered Garfield. "And called Conaldine. Conaldine."

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

TUESDAY. It must have snowed again last night a little bit, for when me and Jubilee woke up I had pushed him out of bed and opened the window to let him down by the rope in his teeth there was a little snow on Farrel's roof and on the ground, and when I had put on my short britches and went down to trade the cow and her doffer a couple of buckets of feed for one bucket of milk it was so cold milking them that I had to blow on my fingers, and only Peanuts and String and Banty showed up, but when I took the milk in the kitchen to strain it the girls were in the house, standing around the gas stove watching my mother fry pancakes, so I went in the other room to warm my hands at the bassburner, and Younies followed me in there, but Feeble and Maggie stayed in the kitchen watching my mother, and when my fingers began to get warm they felt like toothache in the ends of them. I heard Feeble telling my mother that she certainly does like to wrap her face around a bunch of hot pancakes. So I wasn't surprised when my mother made some extra pancakes and fried some extra bacon and set the kitchen table and told me to eat out there with the girls.

We started to feed our faces before my mother finished frying pancakes and the grown-ups, and my ant came out and stood talking to my mother, leaning back against our table, and Feeble had a pancake on her plate and it was covered with melted butter and syrup, and Feeble sat it over right by the side of where my ant was leaning, and I wanted to tell her she was crazy, because my ant don't ever sit on a table, but just then my ant started to turn around to find out what we were so still about, and she reached back and rested her weight on one hand, and she put that hand right on top of Feeble's pancake, and Feeble hollered "Now look what you've done!" My ant stood there with part of the pancake sticking to her hand, and she didn't know whether to be mad or sorry, and Feeble put her elbow down on the table and hid her face on it and shook like she was crying, and my mother told her to never mind there was plenty of clean plates and pancakes, and my ant went over to the washbasin and was washing, and Feeble turned around and looked cross-eyed at her and put out her tongue, and my ant was looking in the glass over the washbasin and saw her, and she turned around and swatted her across the face with the washing and called her a little imp of satan, and my mother said "Why Nancy!"

We went down and whacked stones across the thin ice on the pond till school time. They certainly did slide. I bet Betsy the ice wouldn't hold him up, and I won. But he only got wet to his knees.

Love's Reawakening

A Wife's Triumph Over Jealousy

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge and Dicky inspect the new piano.

I WOULD have believed, however, and smiled encouragingly at my little maid, who with a wary look at my mother-in-law's closed door, came close to me.

"Mother, I see he's like to have you and Meester Graham. I had the hope that the gain and workshop we were putting up for the Christmas surprise would provide an outlet for the boy's superfluous energy but when I thought that thought Dicky is well

"I would be right down," he said. "But maybe you're right. However, don't you know that there's a bad strain in Hank worse than there is in any of the others. But I don't think you need to worry over Junior being trained in systematic deceit."

I had that notion too when I saw the warning look Hank gave him when he said he was playing. I didn't like the way our dad stopped short. But I think I've spiked Hank's guns. I'll keep an eye on him and the rest of you are all right. I think it's doing Junior good to have the companionship of other youngsters. He's been too much alone."

An Unconscious Reapinch

Was there a reprimand even if unnoticed in his voice? It was so mild, I told myself, but if I had wished to make one, far there was a knock on the door and Dicky opened it to William and Henry, carrying the guns for which Dicky had asked. He counted them and dismissed the boys, then made sure the guns were unloaded, put them away. He unlocked the wall safe and put his service revolver away best, and when he had locked the safe again came over to me and pulled me to my feet.

"There you're welcome home, Maity," he said roughly but friendly. "You have won your point. The guns are mine."

"Thank you, Dicky," I said, smiling. "You know the boys were a lot of fun till they got tired," he said. "But I was glad they got fed up when they did, for I was afraid they would catch on. What a platform for them!" they'd ask, and I'd tell 'em I guessed you wanted to have some private谈话.

"Worthy, I said nothing except a demur "Thank you, Dicky," but I returned his kiss warmly just as Katie's voice sounded in the hall outside.

"Meester Graham oh Meester Graham, vero vero vero?"

"There are more people in this house with nothing to do except make a noise," Dicky grumbled unjustly, but I shook my head at him and, going to the door, called to my little maid:

"I'm in here, Katie," I said, just as my mother-in-law opened her door, gave a snort and a disgusted glare at the offender and slammed the door again. I was thankful for you and Mister Graham and your friends. And I told them Mr. Graham wanted to have some books down here, and make a billiard table. They was plenty excited over that but I told 'em they needn't count on it, only big folks would be allowed to play. It was just after they began to get tired of working. But I made 'em stick to it and finally told 'em that they couldn't come down here at all if they didn't work. I knew that would fix 'em. I haven't seen hair nor hide of 'em since. But I really ought to have some curtains up to these windows now. If they should buy them and make them up this afternoon."

"When will the billiard tables be out?" Dicky said, lowering his voice instinctively.

"They promised them solemnly for day after tomorrow. I had them sent to Mr. Tice's house."

"Good! But how in the world are we ever going to get all this truck down here, with those four lads on the job?"

"You don't need most of it down till Christmas Eve, do you?" Sam Tice asked.

"No, but—"

"Don't you worry, I'll see to everything. We have our Christmas Eve early and we're all ready for it. The boys have already had the plaster board walls and ceilings completed. The floor was about half laid and the raised platform at one end was finished. The rough benches were in place at one side and four strong benches of varying heights were in construction."

"I never thought you'd be able to get so much done at this time," I told Mr. Tice.

"You know the boys were a lot of fun till they got tired," he said. "But I was glad they got fed up when they did, for I was afraid they would catch on. What a platform for them!" they'd ask, and I'd tell 'em I guessed you wanted to have some private谈话.
